

Privacy Policy

This page explains how euspen uses any information you give to us, and the ways in which we protect your privacy.

The Data Protection Act

Under the Data Protection Act 1998, we have a legal duty to protect any information we collect from you. We do not pass on your details to any third party unless you give us permission or else euspen is legally obliged to do so.

Data Protection Officer

The appointed Data Protection Officer who coordinates Data Protection across euspen is Dr Theresa Burke (email:Theresa-burke@euspen.eu)

What information do we collect?

If you are a user with general public and anonymous access, euspen does not store or capture personal information, but merely logs the user's IP address that is automatically recognised by the web server.

We collect information from our members in respect of their contact details and areas of scientific/technical expertise. These data are held within euspen only unless express permission has been given to provide such details on euspen's 'Expertise Database' which is made available to members only.

Information is also collected from visitors to our website who wish to register for access to further secure areas of the site. These data are held within euspen only unless express permission has been given to provide such details on euspen's 'Expertise Database' which is made available to members only.

Purpose for which Information is collected

Information is collected for the following purposes only:

- For membership administration purposes
- Where agreement is given, details added to euspen's database, may be used to distribute information on relevant events and activities in the field of micro, nano and precision engineering.

Contacting us

You can ask for information or request services in 5 ways: by requests and questions sent by online forms, e-mail, phone, post or in person. You can make comments and give us your feedback in the same way.

If you send an e-mail or complete a form on the website asking for information or a service, or sending a comment that requires a response, it will be passed to the appropriate person who will respond to you. We do not pass on your details to any third party unless you give us permission or euspen is legally obliged to do so.

After we have replied to you, we will keep a record of your message for at least six years.
